St. Matthews Will Appeal Ban On Taxing Annexed Property

The City of St. Matthews will appeal a Circuit Court order voiding the City's tax bills sent out January 1 to owners of property annexed last fall.

The City's attorney, C. Maxwell Brown, said an early hearing by the Court of Appeals will be sought.

Judge Macauley L. Smith yesterday entered a judgment carrying out a ruling he made about three weeks ago prohibiting St. Matthews from collecting the taxes.

He acted in a suit brought by Charles B. Trueheart and five others attacking the January 1 St. Matthews tax ordinance. Judge Smith yesterday ordered that his ruling apply to all property owners annexed by St. Matthews last fall.

Says 5,000 Can Ignore Bills

Leon Seidman, attorney who filed the suit, estimated about 5,000 taxpayers can ignore the tax bills pending final ruling by the courts.

The judge ruled St. Matthews is not required to return any taxes it has collected under the January 1 ordinance pending the final court decision.

The Trueheart suit contended St. Matthews did not follow statutory requirements in attempting to base its tax bills on Jefferson County assessments.

"I got the impression she was getting an affection for me," Green told the judge. "She put her arms around me three or four times after the other pupils had left and gave me a hug and a squeeze. I quit."
